

Elegy, Poisoned Hearts

The night that the eye of heaven shines
Down mountains of hope and joy we glide

The best wasn't good enough, all had to greed for more
Took our hand and our soul as well; dwell in the dark

Intrigued by a ghostly light divine
Engaged in our bodily delight

But we had to sail along, to where the story ends
Took the time, just to find that there ain't no way back

[Chorus]

Who believes in reason, age of common sense
Poisoned hearts of black and white
It's grey we are drowning in

While chocking in tiny bits of life
It's flashing in memories through our minds

Why we had to sing the song, we knew was wrong inside
Out of tune, there's no key to those who pray for you

[Chorus]

All our dreams, we left them for...
Mysteries with velvet claws
All that seemed right to need,
it's gone
