

Elend, The Poisonous Eye

We have waited so long.
My starving eyes,
Drunk to see.
We have waited so long.
Blind,
Neither living nor dead,
We could have died to see the world in bloom.

Poisonous Eye
Poisonous Eye
The eyes of men, they withered in the sun
Poisonous Eye
Poisonous Eye
And reason enslaves us no longer

Yet vision is all that matters
To a wayward traveller,
Another dream... another dream is all we are longing for.
In every shade, a fragment of light,
In every shape, every colour,
The chasms of solitude.

In the temple of truth, we were burning
And we saw the dim sun swallow the sky.

Cast out from the scorn of men,
In a desert effaces,
Can we live without shame?
Can we die without pride?

Poisonous Eye

All joy is gone
Seven Eyes to see
All joy is gone
Seven Eyes to bleed

Poisonous Eye