

Elephant Island, Still Here

I've forgotten
But how the past
Can feed the fat of future

Something about you
That leaves a piece
Of every place familiar

Shapes of bodies
Shapes of loss
The very least in common

Left to guessing
And growing old
Lives that rose around us

Reflections pass between
Two mirrors, you and me

Oh, are you still here?
Oh, are you still gone?
Oh, everything was real
Oh, everyone was wrong

Into ashes
Raw and white
Every time you speak

Take your moonlight
Take your black eyes
Take your smithereens

I could help you
Could dig you out
Mend your railroad ways

But I don't want to
I don't believe you
Doing it just like you did

Reflections pass between
Two mirrors, you and me

Oh, are you still here?
Oh, are you still gone?
Oh, everything was real
Oh, everyone was wrong

Are you still here?
Are you still gone?
Are you still here?
Are you still gone?
