

Elysium, Swallow Her

oceans... rising higher now
starlight... wraps the moisty dusk
swallow... the universe in swoon
fountains... of milky sighs
in rain of shattered feelings I fall empty and cold blackhearted angels' twilight bleeding is my broken heart children of silver shield lovers in sweet embrace waters trembling with bliss dead leaves in autumn haze swallow her... see now how she yearns for this open her... with a razortongue in flames of the end in silky streams of mourning a solitary muse withering roses' drama bleeding is her weakened heart strayed in eternity a requiem for silhouette funeral widowspring half-opened and undressed never leave her again
...she's thirsty...
ecstasy of seductive scents all is yours to drown in a promised passion falls and we will kiss the steel cause all the prayers we've saved are lost and dead