

Emily Osment, What about me

The city is sleeping, but I`m still awake
I`m dreaming, I`m thinking what heppened today isn`t right
I fold into the night
The flashbacks, the pictures, the letters and songs
The memories, the heart that you carved on the wall
It`s a shame, now that nothing`s the same
Now the bridges are burned and we`re lost in the wind
It`s time that we sink or swim

What about you, what about me?
What about fairy tale endings?
Were you just pretending to be?
I`m wondering
What if we tried, what if I cried?
What if it`s better tomorrow?
I`m wondering
What about me?

You said it, you meant it, you hung up the phone
The talking in circles, it set it in stone
You were gone
We were wrong all along
Now the past is the past
And the bruises may fade
These scars are here to say

What about you, what about me?
What about fairy tale endings?
Were you just pretending to be?
I`m wondering
What if we tried, what if I cried?
What if it`s better tomorrow?
I`m wondering
What about me?

Stay away, you`ll fade away
I`m not afraid anymore

What about you, what about me?
What about fairy tale endings?
Were you just pretending to be?
I`m wondering
What if we tried, what if I cried?
What if it`s better tomorrow?
What if I followed your eyes?
I`m wondering
What about me?
