

Emo Side Project, Anatomy Of A Corner what have you got inside your head what's that scent I smell in the air? and I know not whats ahead so I just stare and admire the darkness that drags me here

I know not whats been here and I know that you were before me what will I do when no one is left here? stare into the headlights so blankly and unprepared

I never felt this coming I never even herd you breathe you'll never find the answers even though you looked for a century and what will be the end must slightly be the beginning it's always so different its never how you want it to be so what's in this empty place that occupies the place where my tears are cried today and maybe tomorrow what sits with me is just an invisible ghost of what will be and this circular circumference has no corners to fall into and no walls to keep in the secrets we held onto like every time you ditched me every time you called me a fool cause I cant cast a shadow if there is no light left in the room as you sit in your corner tonight you'll probably never come out of your place you hold so close to your heart and you'll probably never leave you so easily call it your home you're all alone

Im all alone with you
