

Emo Side Project, Friends, Lies

you always thought you'd get away with everything you do the last breath you took won't be enough you took what little trust i had and threw it on the floor and used it against me again i said this never would have happened like it did and i tried to get my way out of this never could have been this way again and if you're walking through the rain i hope you slip and fall tonight and when you slip on something sharp don't come crying back to me phone calls i wish i could forget i wish i could take back this suffering you gave me i know you did lies and deceit had you thinking less of me don't tell me things i don't wanna hear just like you did when we met and don't ever forget, i'm just a broken boy