

Emo Side Project, Songbirds

the swingsets swinging and the songbirds singing and i can't help but remember when we sat there together with your legs rocking back and forth and toes scrunching up my hand in your hand, you looked up and said "baby, i love you like no one loves anything and take me forever, just take me forever and we'll be together, as long as i'm yours and i promise it'll all be alright" i said "sweetie don't worry, i'm already yours nothing can come between us" and the songbirds still singing so i started dancing and you couldn't help but smile at me the laughter and joy brought us together the love for each other kept us together and i walked you home, even though the weather was unsure of what it would be when we arrived at your house you asked me to come in and i was so damn nervous, i tried keeping my distance trembling fingers, and when you moved up to kiss me i think for a second it killed me i gave you a flower completely in bloom and you started dancing didn't stop till you were tired and i couldn't help but smile and we laid on your bed and we both feel asleep together. the sunlight playing readily across your face the swingset swinging and the songbirds, still singing