

Endeavour, Palisades

When the winds gain control for a spell Dying hope turns away
See the wind bear laments, here my knell tolls the tale of lonely days

I know my path's gone far astray Ruthless fate, I lie and betray Can't (you) see my self-inflicted dismal road of life?

Suppose one succumbed to face life apart
Condemned to bear the enmity
I gladly recite the sins far behind
the Palisades of destiny

Crawling deep in a dark heresy Look for truth in disguise Race the triumph of black harmony waiting for the proud and wise

Every night I wait in dismay My sunlight went out for today
Can't (you) see my self-inflicted
dismal road of life?

Suppose one succumbed to face life apart
Condemned to bear the enmity
I gladly recite the sins far behind
the Palisades of destiny