

Enemy You, Boy In A Bubble

For them, his feet never leave the ground
He doesn't want to let everyone down
Never given the chance to grow
Experiences he'll never know

No one seems to know what he wants
And no one really knows what he needs

Around him they censor every word they say
Excluded from the games that they play
They all know what's best for his life
And on their words he relies

Lies from those that think it's going to help
But no one needs to save him from himself

He's a boy in a bubble
