

Enrico Garzilli, Do I Hold You

Abelard

Do I hold you?

Do I ask you to go?

Do I touch you?

If I dare what I mean

Would I frighten you?

Would I make a scene

And cause you to turn away?

Hlose

Do I hold you?

Do I ask you to stay?

Do I kiss you?

If I dare what I dream

I would find a way to hold you

And make you stay in my arms

Abelard

I can't dream at night without seeing you

I can't see you standing there and not touch you

I can't touch you and not want you

I can't forget you, no matter what I do

Hlose

I'm not worried

That the dark of the night will deceive us

For the light of your love

Abelard

And the truth in your touch

Both

Will protect us

Abelard

I must hold you

I must ask you to stay

I must touch you

Both

I don't care what they say

What they think, what they do

I must hold you

I must hold you

Hold you
