

Epicure, Armies Against Me

Mary-Jo, don't you know you've got to learn to be alone and though the pavement's beckoning now come away from that window and as the water touches chin I let a little sunlight in yeah as the waves are crashing in I find a light to guide you in so bring your armies against me, my love infiltrate me with your spies and implicate me in your lies the world's not out to get you, my love I know it feels that way sometimes and you don't even hold me by your side fill your head with guns and bombs don't take too long, take too long

Mary-Jo, don't you know I read the note on your pillow was it signed in lipstick or signed in blood?
I guess now I'll never no correct me now, if I'm wrong it seems bleeding hearts don't last that long and our last words still echo on and honey now that you're gone...

so bring your armies against me, my love
infiltrate me with your spies
and implicate me in your lies
the world's not out to get you, my love
I know it feels that way sometimes
and you don't even hold me by your side
fill your head with guns and bombs
don't take too long, take too long

Oh, just one last thing before I go I never meant to hurt you so Breathing alone, you too I went out(?) For eternal yesterday just one last thing before I go I never meant to hurt you so i said it once I'll say it once again

so bring your armies against me, my love
infiltrate me with your spies
and implicate me in your lies
the world's not out to get you, my love
I know it feels that way sometimes
and you don't even hold me by your side
fill your head with guns and bombs
don't take too long, take too long

fill your head with guns and bombs
don't take too long, take too long