Erasure, Take Me Back

Take me back to the place Where I once belonged This could be anyplace a place Where you and I could sing this song

Take me back where I hear waterfalls flowing

Let me dive into the lake Where winter hides the snow Then comes the summertime Fields of scarlet poppies grow

Take me back where I see butterflies toing froing

Let me sleep a little while Underneath the trees And dream of dragonflies Where the weary willow weeps for me

Take me back where I see dandelions blowing

And the river flows
I am never gonna take it back again
And the river flows
I am never gonna get it back again

We don't know anything Trapped in a world full of strangers Please don't tell me anything I'd rather fall into you
