Eric Clapton, Behind The Sun

(Eric Clapton)

My love has gone behind the sun; Since she left, the darkness has begun. The smile that used to shine on me Is nothing more than a memory.

I see her face, I hear her voice. She made her move, I had no choice But walk and cry, wipe tears with my hand, The one that carries a wedding band.

And the clouds hang low And the flowers that used to grow In my heart Are dying now, dying now.

Dying now.