

Eric Maliet, You're So Tired

I see you laugh I hear your words of comfort
Your smile and it's all so silent
Nothing is real you'll never walk past that door
And it's the saddest thing i've ever seen
These are the sorest tears i've ever cried

You're so tired
And your skin has turned to wax
You're so tired
And your face looks like a mask
You're so tired
Now that you've got time to rest
You're so tired
Was there pain inside your chest
When you died
When you died

Look at us now so lost and grim and forlorn
Why you and why with no reason
In your darkness heaven forgive and god bless
And it's the saddest thing i've ever lived
These are the sorest tears i've ever shed

You're so tired
And your skin has turned to wax
You're so tired
And your face looks like a mask
You're so tired
Now that you've got time to rest
You're so tired
Was there pain inside your chest
When you died
When you died

You're so tired
And your eyes have gone all white
You're so tired
Now it's time to say goodnight
You're so tired
But you're always by my side
You're so tired
There's a part of me that died
And that cried
When you died
