Eric Woolfson, Immortal

I was adrift on an ocean of dreams I was amazed...
And as I sail to the end of the world I'm not afraid...
Mournful moon and willow tree
Tell the world not to weep for me
And I will be set free...

I took a drink from a bottle of wine And I was changed...
Made a deal with the devil inside And I was shamed...
I have sailed on stormy seas Where the four winds blow me;
Shining moon and willow tree Tell the world--remember me For I will be set free...

All that we see,
All that we seem
Is but a shadow of a shadow
Of a dream within a dream;
But if a tree is evergreen,
Then maybe part of us
Could be eternal...
Though tangled life
May be no more,
A drop rain upon the ocean
Grain of sand upon the shore
The words will live forevermore
If you can hear me now,
Am I immortal?

Magic mood and willow tree If they ask about me, Tell the truth, and they might learn; Light a candle and watch it burn... Then I will be set free...

Free as a bird
Upon the wind,
Now all the trials and tribulations
Of the world don't mean a thing;
Above the clouds
I'll fly away-Was it my imagination,
Did the stars come out to play?
Beyond the sun-Eternal flame,
I hear a chorus of a million voices
Calling out my name;
But all I see and all I seem
Is but a shadow of a shadow
Of a dream within a dream,

Free as the wind--Lighter than air Free from the jealous minds, The scornful, bitter words Won't hurt me there And I will live forevermore--If you remember me, I am immortal! I am immortal!
