

Erika Jo, Good Day for Goodbye

Woke up today, the alarm clock ringin'
Face to the wall, you were still sleepin'
Rolled out of bed, turned on the light
Brushed my hair with my eyes closed
Stumbled down stairs, poured myself a cup of coffee
Breakfast with the TV, that's the way it always is these days
We're stuck in our ways
And nothin' seems to ever change

But the sun is shinin', seems like perfect timin'
To take a drive with the music loud
Laugh and sing 'til the road runs out
But the sun is shinin', and there's no denyin'
That you and I could give it one more try
But it sure feels like a good day for goodbye

We swore if we tried we could make it to the weekend
By Saturday night when we started sinkin'
Who's gonna bail us out this time when the water gets too high
And not enough talk, not enough action
We could fill our days with yet another distraction
But my hands are getting numb these days from barely hangin' on

But the sun is shinin', seems like perfect timin'
To take a drive with the music loud
Laugh and sing 'til the road runs out
But the sun is shinin', and there's no denyin'
That you and I could give it one more try
But it sure feels like a good day for goodbye

To pack my bags, collect my things, take back what's mine
Cut these strings, baby, baby, don't you really maybe think it's time

But the sun is shinin', seems like perfect timin'
To take a drive with the music loud
Laugh and sing 'til the road runs out
But the sun is shinin', and there's no denyin'
That you and I could give it one more try
But it sure feels like a good day for goodbye

But it sure feels like a good day, I'd hate to waste a good day
It sure feels like a good day for goodbye
