

Ernest Tubb, That's When It's Comin' Home To You

For the millions of lies that you told me and the millions of nights I've waited for you
But you'll find out someday for every wrong you'll pay
And that's when it's comin' home to you
Now you said that you love me and always would be true
But how could you love me and then keep hurtin' me the way you do
For the millions of heartaches you caused me
And the millions of tears I've shed over you
It's all been so unfair but honey someday I won't care
And that's when it's comin' home to you
[steel - guitar]
It's never bothered me to see me sit and cry
But you laughed and said there's for the best that we'll say goodbye
For the millions of heartaches...
And that's when it's comin' home to you
