

evan and jaron, Nature Co.

if nature sold herself on layaway in a little town I would be the first in line and buy myself a sound a waterfall a tidal wave or a breathing of the trees a heavy wind a thunder or a falling of the leaves and I would proclaim Im the new proprietor of a sound in a press conference held downtown
when the people would look at me in distain I would simply tell them this at least youll have someone to blame for ruining your weekend I would play mother nature unlease my sound at will no more sitting and waiting on this cracked window sill if I feel like love I will shake the trees if Im consumed in loneliness then I will drop the leaves
and I would proclaim
in distain I would simply say outright
at least you have someone to blame for scaring the children in the night what if I call for a waterfall some light rain and some other owner calls for a massive hurricaine wed have to be responsible users and respect the rules of God Ill just take a load off and have to buy them all
simply say
to blame for a near perfect day
