

Even Song, Under Winter Skies

Under the winter sky, as Earth relapses into sleep the veil of despair falls like a tired vernal leaf As darkness conquers the moon, all the dreams slip away Depression comes with large steps, as the slumbering sorrow awakes

Lustreless stars, vanished silhouettes of sky are shedding silver tears with the last moonlight And the wishpering winds die away as the Earth penetrates with pain