

Exodus, The Last Act Of Defiance

The second of February, 1980 began three days of misery a scene of retaliation epitomizing violence, horror, and vindication Thieves, murderers, and rapists inundated their prison like homicidal sadists guards and convicts alike would pay the price to them the electric chair would look like paradise! only degradation, torture, and cremation would suffice!
A sea of agony rolled in
like the coming of the tide
the more fortunate escaped the insanity
through suicide
the screams of the dying
would haunt the living to the grave
survivors of the riot
relive the nightmare every day!

The Last Act of Defiance!
The Last Act of Defiance!

With a never ending appetite barbituates set them off like dynamite eradicating informants acetylene torches dealt the punishment melted from skin to bone the fire silenced their screams to moans smoke filled the air from bodies set aflame begging for mercy, but their words were spoken in vain!

They weren't allowed to perish until they cherished all the pain!
A sea of agony rolled in
like the coming of the tide
the more fortunate escaped the insanity
through suicide
the screams of the dying
would haunt the living to the grave
survivors of the riot
relive the nightmare every day!

The Last Act of Defiance!
The Last Act of Defiance!

Guards they had taken hostage were to blame for pushing them over the edge their brutality would be their demise like sharks in a frenzy they lashed out at their prize when the madness had ended the gore was too intense to be comprehended no one explained the real reason why for cruelty of a few so many should die
They knew of the flaws, but still insist the cause was justified!
A sea of agony rolled in
like the coming of the tide
the more fortunate escaped the insanity
through suicide
the screams of the dying
would haunt the living to the grave
survivors of the riot
relive the nightmare every day!

The Last Act of Defiance!
The Last Act of Defiance!