

Faction, Running Amok

Total chaos everywhere

One step beyond the old Red Scare

People panic, they're afraid, at home is the place they should have stayed

Different factions, no real reasons, people dying, running amok

Something went wrong with their ways, everyone's waiting for the day

Their type of thinking has fallen down, and not a building is standing in town

A faux pas that can't be denied, do all these people have to die?

The answer isn't all that clear, it's in the hands of most of our peers

Is anarchism the real way

We'll probably find out any day

People who don't even know what it is will contribute to its future state.