

Fair, Carelessness

Carelessness, something I've read about
In a magazine, in a journal of Medicine for fever and rapid heart
For the younger set giving life a start

All the pain and dissent
All the freedom to climb
A thousand wishes I've missed
For hanging onto this

When a moment brings
Hope for everything
Every time I walk away from this
Will the one who came
To throw it all away
Ever get to see the end of this?

Carelessness, is something I recognize
When you're fast asleep
And I'm in the right
Taking in everything you ignore
My abrasiveness
And your angel core

More minutes of life
Put away, set aside
Ever following things
That I won't find

Won't you climb high
And shower some correction on me?
Don't dare disguise
Your colorful predictions are clear
