Fair, Pause

I can't control what's on my own Take the moment that you shut me out But in the calm before the storm I remember what it's all about

I don't blame you this time I don't blame you this time

I still believe that anything can come from this love

Behind the tears you kept for years Is a longing that I know too well If I could pause, centemplate my thoughts It could take a piece out of this hell