

Faith Hill, One

I've tried with all my might
But still don't understand why we ever let it get so out of hand
My arms are reaching out and holding on tight
To what it always felt so right
It's hard to figure out the answers to the questions
When both our lives are going in separate directions

CHORUS:

One is breaking into two
And my heart is turning blue
And you still don't get it, do you, do you
I thought we had all the love to go it for the long run
So before the damage is done
Let's start back over at one Lights out when every evening used to get so hot
Now we got so damned distracted we forgot
How to lock the world away and just get lost in where you end and where I begin Love is strong but it's so easy to divide
So boy let's think about how much is on the line

One is breaking into two
And my heart is turning blue
and you still don't get it do you, do you
I thought we had all the love to go it for the long run
so before the damage is done
let's start back over at one

One is breaking into two
My heart is turning blue
And you still don't get it do you, do you
We had all the love to go it for the long run So before the damage is done let's start back over as

One is breaking into two
And my heart is turning blue
and you still don't get it do you, do you I thought we had all the love to go with for the long run
so before the damage is done let's start back over as one

(Start back over as one)
(Got to get back, got to get back)
One
