Farm Chalk, Hey

sinking while the water rises in a stream helpless as my indecision's drowning me tripping over things that i should clearly see speechless when a word would save me it's words i fear

if i falter
would you help me make it right if i run for shelter
will you hold me for the night
if i trust you
will it help me see the light
i've lived my life alone
i've learned my lesson

reaching out to no one who can give me help feeling for the candle as i burn myself

will it help me see the light

stop and overcompensate for all the times that you've been afraid the world's become a conversation close the door somebody just might hear you never break the silence never break the law never let them in it seems so complicated it's not all us & them

will you hold me for the night if i love you will it help me see the light i've lived my life alone
