

Farmakon, My Sanctuary in Solitude

Even though the rain won't stop falling and the winds howl outside I do not fear, for every breath I take they're losing me

A faint scent of summer
Still haunts in my mind
I'll hold on to it
I'll take it with me into my dreams

Somewhere between illusion and reality
I follow this familiar path
It's slowly getting warmer
As I close my eyes

I tell myself a tale of happiness to guide me through the twilight Bewildered by the perfect world opening in front of me
I stand still

I remember it all
I remember every single tree and the shape of every single cloud But still I will be coming back here over and over again

I'm taken by the road that leads me forth Forever in gratitude to you for giving me my wings
You are my dawn, you are my hope
You are the sign of spring for all is not lost