

Fates Warning, Point Of View

looking out on a familiar scene there's no agreement in what we see your perception lacks clarity and my perspective is blinding me

side by side
divided they stand

parallel lives running parallel with YOU to the point where our horizons divide my opinion is just a point of view and your position is the other side caught up in our convictions we forget how our senses distort things we see we can't accept our differences but we can always disagree

side by side
divided they stand

parallel lives running parallel with YOU
to the point where our horizons divide
my opinion is just a point of view
and your position is the other side where I stand is not so far from YOU a different opinion is just another point of view

parallel lives running parallel with YOU
to the point where our horizons divide
my opinion is just a point of view
and your position is the other side

parallel lives running parallel with YOU
to the point where our horizons divide
my opinion is just a point of view
and your position is the other side

parallel lives running parallel with YOU
to the point where our horizons divide
my opinion is just a point of view
and your position is the other side