Feist, Now At Last

Now at last I know What a fool I've been For I've lost the last love I shall ever win

And/Now at last I see How my heart was blind To the joys before me That I left behind

When the wind was fresh
On the hills
And the stars were new in the sky
And a lark was heard in the still
Where was I
Where was I

When the spring is cold Where do robins go What makes winters lonely Now at last I know

When the wind was fresh On the hills And the stars were new in the sky And a lark was heard in the still Where was I Where was I

When the spring is cold Where do robins go What makes winters lonely Now at last I know