

Fiddler's Green, I'm Here Because I'm Here

Here I am amongst you and I'm here
Because I'm Here
I'm only one year older than I was
This time last year

Early to rise makes man wise,
This I don't think true
Sure how the hell can a man go to bed
If he has none to go to

The more man has, the more man want,
Well this I don't think true
I never met a man with one black eye
Who whised that he had two

Never throw a brick to a drowning man
If you're close to a grocer's store
Throw him a bar of sunlight soap,
Let him wash himself ashore

I think I've said enough I say no more
And before you show me the door
I'll take a bow and I leave you now
And I won't come back any more
