

Five Iron Frenzy, Vultures

Watching Mrs. Brady prime the brand new Kenmore washer
See the brilliant gleam of the automatic tooth flosser
Beautiful the china, what a lovely cup and saucer
Yeah I saw your Rolex, but I think it's an impostor
Wave to the pretty ladies
With your brand new hairpiece, baby
Ahh, the smell of cash, it's good to be alive
I'm going to spend some dough like it's 1985

Rip the tags off mattresses
You'll buy more anyway
Is the paint on that SUV
Some brand new type of gray?

Believe in anything
Vultures circling
Open, swallow
You're so hollow
Yeah

My teeth are getting yellow from the mocha I just drank
I need to bleach them out, but my breath will still be rank
Did you see the new computers, aren't they oh so obsolete?
And that shade of black you wear, it's so Tuesday of last week
You need a better life
Have you tried another wife?
I used to be an amateur but now I'm going pro
It once was Mile High but you sold it to Invesco

The empire grows
You can see it's massive span
Beneath the golden arches
Somewhere in Japan

And the vultures circle
They've paved the way
They've bit and clawed their path
To top floors in L.A.
And beneath the brazen windows
You can hear the sound
They say the word on the street
Is "something's going down"...

When the revolution comes
