

Fleetwood Mac, That Made Me Stronger

Dreams reoccur in my solitude
Breaking my heart
Injuring my mood
With all of the things that I thought I knew
It was you

Well the conversation rings in my head
"Well you know me better than I know myself
Will you write this for me?"
He says, "No, you write your songs yourself"
That made me stronger
It made me hold on to me

Well I remember you caught my eye
It was late September
It was no surprise
He made me better
His songs were soft and tender sometimes

Well the conversations ring in my head
I remember everything that we said
All those tears that we shared

"Well you know me better than I know myself
Can you write this for me?"
He says, "No, you write your songs yourself"
That made me stronger
It made me hold on to me

Conversations ring in my head
I remember everything that we said
All those tears that we shared.
Don't call me when you're lonely

"You know me better than I know myself
Can you write this for me?"
He says, "No, you write your songs yourself"
That made me stronger
It made me hold on to me

"Well... you know me better than I know myself
Can you write this for me?"
He says, "No, you write your songs yourself"
He made me stronger
He made me hold on to me

Well
Once more I tell the shadows of my soul to stay back
Everything has changed now
And I don't want to go back
And nothing you can say can change my mind

Well
Once more I tell the shadows of my soul to stay back
Everything has changed now
And I don't want to go back
And nothing you can say can change my mind

No, I don't want to go back
And nothing you say can change my mind
I don't want to go back
And nothing you say can change my mind
I don't want to go back
And nothing you say can change my mind
