

Flesh Field, My Savior

Stillness calms me while the darkness pounds outside my head.
Hate surrounds my life until you bring me peace again.
Your voice is all I need to keep the hurt from seeping in.
One last time I call your name, and you save me once again.

My only love,
I bleed for you,
And I can't let go
No matter what I do.
Your face so sweet.
I never want to see you go.

As I lay there dying in your arms you weep for me.
You brush a kiss against my lips and then I'm whole again.
My pain disappears as I lay with you, and we become one soul.
I feel your arms close around me tight, and I know I can go on.