Flipper, Distant Illusion

You're a dead empty sexless soul And all you have is what you buy to show

You keep on buyin' What is shoved into your mind Thinking all the time you're an original kind But what you don't know They say it won't hurt So if you don't find out soon There will be a global alert

'Cause you're a dead empty sexless soul And what you don't have you will never know

Now keepin' up with hip cool or being down Keeps you so busy you can't hear the distress sound The world's gettin' wasted As we just grab more and more Killin' off our planet In the end we'll all lose for sure

You're a dead empty sexless soul Giving out opinions But your feelings keep you on hold

There's a distant illusion that controls mass minds Media advertising becomes a gold mine There's a distant illusion that keeps you in your place Going to work on time but waking up too late There's a distant illusion and we had better Question why or be left behind in evolution Bounding through time

You're a dead empty sexless soul And what you don't know Can kill you very slow
