

Flipper, May The Truth Be Known

Once it starts you never see them
Once it starts there goes your freedom Now you're standin' by the front door
You want it back and even more

It was once written that those who give the truth
become the slaves of the receivers

Once it starts you can't believe it Once it starts you cannot see it Stripped of all but left with your senses
All tangled up in a useless adventure

who give the truth
become the slaves of the receivers

Once it starts you never see them
Once it starts you cannot believe them You've torn my heart right from my chest It's time to give that subject to a rest

who give the truth
become the slaves of the receivers

Once it starts you cannot forgive them Once it starts you don't want to live then All we needed was a little trusting love We'll stand proud and rise above

who give the truth
become the slaves of the receivers
