

Floater, They

And he once said, "Everyone is dead"
And he once said, "Death abandons guile and strides"
And he once said, "...bloody sun bullying the sky"
And he once said, "Everyone is dead, my son, everyone's my son"
"My son," he said, "Jesus...they've all died"
"Son," he said, "Give me wings and I'll fly"
And he once said, "Everyone's dead"
And he once said he'd be left outside the wall
And he once said he should never hear me call out
And he once said, "Everyone is dead, my son"
"My son," he said, "Jesus...they've all died"
Son just talk to me
Take some of my pain
I'm not too proud just help me to put shit in your veins
I told you before
Fight to be sane
Not they're all died like suicide
Don't do the same
He said, "Don't do the same"