Florence & The Machine, 100 Years

I believe in you and our hearts we know the truth and I believe in love and the darker it gets the more I do try and fill us with your hate and we will shine a light and the days will become endless and never, and never turn to night then it's just too much I cannot get you close enough a 100 arms, a 100 years you can always find me here and Lord, don't let me break this let me hold it lightly give me arms to pray with instead of ones that hold too tightly we have no need to fight we raise our voices and let our hearts take flight get higher than those planes can fly where the stars do not take sides

then it's just too much I cannot get you close enough a 100 arms, a 100 years you can always find me here and Lord, don't let me break this let me hold it lightly give me arms to pray with instead of ones that hold too tightly then it's just too much I cannot get you close enough a 100 arms, a 100 years you can always find me here and Lord, don't let me break this let me hold it lightly give me arms to pray with instead of ones that hold too tightly

I let him sleep, asn as he does my held breath fills the room with blood it hurts in ways I can't describe my heart bends and breaks so many, many times and is born again with each sunrise and is born again with each sunrise funeral were held all over the city for you to belled in the square a woman raised his omen from the prye sorry, we thought you didn't care and how does it feel while you scratch the itch how does it feel pulled out all your stiches karma is a bitch

then it's just too much I cannot get you close enough a 100 arms, a 100 years you can always find me here and Lord, don't let me break this let me hold it lightly give me arms to pray with instead of ones that hold too tightly then it's just too much I cannot get you close enough a 100 arms, a 100 years you can always find me here and Lord, don't let me break this let me hold it lightly give me arms to pray with instead of ones that hold too tightly
