

Fly To The Sky, Tell Me

Tell me again, because I was so shocked that I didn't hear.
Even the words that when you meet me your heart doesn't even flutter.
Although they're words I don't want to believe, although it's hard for me,
Even the words of ending that seem so cold to me.
(Look at me baby) Just a little bit longer in my arms
(Give me the chance) Let yourself have my love
Alone, even if I bring my two hands together and beg.
Even if I hold on to you, thinking that it's all just a joke
At your cold expression looking at me,
I hold my head down, holding in just one tear.
That you're words are just lies, that this isn't the end, that it's just a dream from last night that I haven't woken up from,
I prayed that you would just be quiet but
(Look at me baby) Just a little bit longer in my arms
(Give me the chance) Whisper that you love me
Alone, even if you take your two hands and push me away,
Even if I hang on thinking that you might laugh
At your gaze, that's changed so much from yesterday,
I drop to my knees, hiding my wet face.
If me being crazily in love with you is a burden to you then I can love you little by little so that you don't know.
(Look at me baby) Just a little bit longer by my side
(Give me the chance) Let yourself have my love
Alone, even if I bring my two hands together and beg.
Even if I hold on to you, thinking that it's all just a joke
At your cold expression looking at me,
I hold my head down, holding in just one tear, hiding my wet face.