

Flying Circus, Halfway To The Sun

When you fall, I will pick you up
When you call my name I will answer it
When you touch, I will close your hands
I will close your eyes, when you've seen too much
And if you fail, I will carry you
When you're lost I will look for you
When you fade to white, I will colour in
When you fade to grey, when you fade to black again
When you run out the door
You're running on roads that are just too long
And who will be there to say it's okay
When you're halfway to the sun?
If you knock, I will open up
If you ask of me I will give it up
I will answer you, way you've always seen
When you're blown by the winds, they've always been blowing in
When you run out the door
You're running on roads that are just too long
And who will be there to say it's okay
When you're halfway to the sun?
When you break, I will hold you down
When you forget I will understand
When you're lost then I will call your name
I will close your hands when you take too much again
When you run out the door
You're running on roads that are just too long
And who will be there to say it's okay
When you're halfway to the sun?