

Forte, Pieces Of My Heart

Outside the rain pours
Just like the tears rollin down my face
Just like the fear of loneliness I keep inside
Locked Inside, deep in the heart of me

And I know that you dont think you really love me anymore
And I know that someone else is out there waiting by the door
But there's something i must ask of you before we break apart
When you leave could you give me back the pieces of my heart

Someday you'll understand
There'll never be a perfect one
It's easy to have some fun
When things are new I promise you
A friendship lasts forever

And I know that you dont think you really love me anymore
And I know that someone else is out there waiting by the door
But there's something i must ask of you before we break apart
When you leave could you give me back the pieces of my heart

People come and then they go
But there is one thing you should know
Just call on me if you ever need a friend to turn to

And I know that you dont think you really love me anymore
And I know that someone else is out there waiting by the door
But there's something i must ask of you before we break apart
When you leave could you give me back the pieces of my heart

When you leave could you give me back the pieces of my heart
When you leave could you give me back the pieces of my heart (of my heart)
(Fade out)
