Framing Hanley, 23 Days

Your kiss was a perfect drug It gave me the perfect high And cheaters fall in love They all deserve to die

I need to feel you again I need your lips on my skin For one night I could be him Well I could be better

In your eyes I thought I saw tomorrow Now all I see is wasted time

Can we pretend it's always been okay? We never lost it all lost it all Can we pretend we never left this fate? You never lost it all lost it all

This town's not much of a friend After 23 days My patience has reached it's end But I'd take you back anyway

Hold your breath You make the perfect sounds This is what a love is made of And baby you are missing out

'cause in your eyes I thought I saw tomorrow Now all I see is wasted time

Can we pretend it's always been okay? Never lost it all lost it all Can we pretend we never left this fate? We never lost it all lost it all

Let's reintroduce our shadows And watch them become one This room is out of oxygen And I'm not nearly done

The familiar face of your body Is how I know this is right I'm not asking for tomorrow I'm just asking for tonight

Can we pretend it's always been okay? Never lost it all lost it all Can we pretend we never left this fate? We never lost it all lost it all

The familiar face of your body Is how I know this is right Why worry about tomorrow?