

Frank Barile, Another Night With You

When I first touched your skin
That was when I knew
That I would die to spend another night with you
I could stay out late
But all that I would do
Is think about spending another night with you
There's no other goal
I'd rather pursue
Than the chance to spend another night with you

You're all the time
You're everyday
You're all my life
You are the moment
You are today

And you are tonight
You are tonight

As I stumble through the dark
Nothing feels more true
Than my wish to spend another night with you
So I'll go to sleep
In this bed for two
And dream about spending another night with you
And if the morning comes
As it will often do
I'll just wish to spend another night with you

I can't wait to spend another night with you
I can't wait to spend another night with you
