

Frank Barile, Virgin

So how're you doing now
That you're looking out
Over the life that faces you?
Does it make you doubt
The plans that you laid out,
All the certainties that you thought you knew?

You should only live
How you want to live
Don't just aim to be what your father is
A ventriloquist of your influences
Just know there's more to life than this

Another headache,
The biggest one that you will ever have
Will be when you learn
Don't die a virgin to your life

You know those things called dreams?
Well, they're not all they seem
Without a lot of hard, hard work

And you may lose your steam
And hell, you may lose me
But don't ever lose yourself

Another headache,
The biggest one that you will ever have
Will be when you learn
Don't die a virgin to your life

So now that you're adrift
In all your own what-ifs
You may find it hard to breathe
But soon your thoughts will sift
And you'll be happy if
You lose that virginity

Another headache,
The biggest one that you will ever have
Will be when you learn
Don't die a virgin to your life
