

Frank Carter & The Rattlesnakes, Self Love

I wonder who you've helped today
I wonder who you helped to smile the pain away
As you do, as you do

I wonder who you love today
I wonder who you helped to kiss the pain away
As you do, only you

They say lightning it don't strike twice
And never trust a man who's always rolling the dice
But I'm counting on your lightning love
To strike me down death from above

If I ever fall in love again, let me love myself
'Cause I cause pain in my heart like no one else
If I ever fall in love again, let me love myself
Before I give it all away to someone else

Your touch, as honey melts away
Your smile, a butterfly cascade
And your voice, so gentle and so pure
Your love, might be the cure

If I ever fall in love again, let me love myself
'Cause I cause pain in my heart like no one else
If I ever fall in love again, let me love myself
Before I give it all away to someone else

They say lightning it don't strike twice
And never trust a man who's always rolling the dice
But I'm counting on your lightning love
To strike me down death from above

If I ever fall in love again, let me love myself
'Cause I cause pain in my heart like no one else
If I ever fall in love again, let me love myself
Before I give it all away to someone else

Like lightning love, it struck me down
Like lightning love, it struck me down
Like lightning love, it struck me down
Like lightning love, it struck me down