

Frank Sinatra, When Love Comes Again

(back-up) [Connie Haines]

When love comes again, I'll make it stay,
I won't be a fool and send it away,
How could I know that I'd want you so after we said goodbye.
It's hard to believe that we're really through,
It's hard to conceive my world without you.
I thought I'd wait and now it's too late,
My song of love is a sigh.

Though I've tried to keep the tears inside,
You just can't put aside a heart in pain.
People say the teardrops seldom say,
That hearts that cry today may love again.
So I'll just go on dreaming my dreams
And maybe someday, as strange as it seems,
My heart will sing and I'll know it's spring,
When love comes again.

(When love comes again, I'll make it stay,)
(I won't be a fool and send it away,)
(How could I know that I'd want you so after we said goodbye.)

[It's hard to believe we're really through,]
[It's hard to conceive my world without you.]
[I thought I'd wait and now it's too late,]
[My song of love is a sigh.]

Though I've tried to keep the tears inside,
You just can't put aside a heart in pain.
People say that the teardrops seldom say,
That hearts that cry today may love again.
(So I'll just go on dreaming my dreams)
(And maybe someday, as strange as it seems,)
My heart will sing and I'll know it's spring,
(When love), when love .
