

Freezepop, Emotions & Photons

another day flows by time travel gone astray my mind in disarray
i could have run away to be with you
i could have run away to be with you i should have run away to be with you once we got lost in the woods with your hand interlaced between mine and i stared straight at the sun and imagined the beams realigned emotions and photons, that flicker like bees when i look in your eyes, intertwine six stories above i watch the world creep by i used to be in love and that's enough to make me high on you

and that's enough to make me high on you
and that's enough to make me high on you