Frenzal Rhomb, You Are Not My Friend

never felt bad lending a hand think you hoped I wouldnt be in a band broken ashtray I can always replace kick the door then I spit in your face

dream on sunsets, a drink in the sand of all my friends and loosing money in the band remember holidays that werent such a waste broke your jaw from a punch in the face

picture perfect with a frame that pretends to be a martyr for a cause with no end I was thinking that you needed a break what I mean was every bone in your face mental photo with discoloured eyes of dirty carpets and moistened thighs these recollections I will keep to the end cos im sure its wrong, u were never mind friend
