

Freya, I Guess It's A Guy Thing

I Guess It's A Guy Thing

I've been doing some wondering lately - quite a lot
I've been wracking and wringing my brain - I've been thinking
Why do boys look at their old dusty Ford with a look of admiration in their eyes
Proudly showing off the dice in the window and kicking the tyres?

I guess it's a guy thing
It's pure genetics I suppose
I concluded it's biology
So far I think my shot is pretty close

The tyres must be some kind of measure of strength
It's like measuring one's pride and joy - comparing length ...
Another thing is - isn't it freezing cold with your left arm stuck out the window
My mom always said you're apt to loose an arm if a big truck comes along ...

I guess it's a guy thing
It's pure genetics I suppose
I concluded it's biology
So far I think my shot is pretty close