

Full Scale, Billy (Say What You're Feeling)

Let me tell a little tale about a bad arse sucker with some attitude
Seen more in his life than you'd ever want to go through
Seen more through his two eyes than Alice through the looking glass
And he's the one with the colour, light movement and sound
What I now know is that you'd never want to touch this
What I now know is that you'd never want to change this
What I now know is that it's just a simple gear shift
And he's the one with the colour, light movement and sound.

(Go!)

Your time will come.

What did you do today?
Make some money.
What did you prove today?
Prove you're different today.
Make some money, numbing children.
Colour, light, movement, sound.

What did you do today?
Fill some time in.
What did you prove today?
Prove you're solvent today.
Make some money, numbing children.
Colour, light, movement, no price tags.

How many deaths will it take till you realize?
How many bones will you break in the exercise?
How much of god will be left once we capsize?

Say what you're feeling,
I'm the man that just might design you,
Say what you're feeling,
I'm the man that just might define you.

I'm watching.
I said your time will come!
