

Further Seems Forever, Snowbirds And Townies

fountains and florescent lights the season has come
the snowbirds are crowding the nights.
the townies are tired of their beaches and bars being packed so tight the bridges and traffic and in this selecting their flight.

and on these boats
ride the hopes of...
working class boys, dreaming of girls from faraway points
and better things
like winter flings
and longing after spring has sprung and they fly north when winter's done and we get burned in summer's sun

the snowbirds are crowding the nights.
townies and tourists find unlikely love at first sight and swear that they're never leaving, and that is their plight

ride the hopes of...
they fly north when winter's done
and we get burned in summer's sun

this winter is lasting forever at least for tonight
and i know that you're never leaving until your flight takes you off and out of my arms and into the air
so far from your charms that I cannot bear another year in this long forgotten beach town we once shared and this winter is lasting forever

and i know that you're never leaving, never leaving me again not again
